SEA wins significant MoD contract

SEA is pleased to announce that it has won a significant MoD contract worth approximately £3M to supply the Royal Navy with state-of-the-art equipment.

The system will use leading edge technology within an open architecture to provide RN submarines with enhanced capability. The programme will deliver a step change in performance aimed at future combat system requirements whilst still maintaining compatibility with legacy systems.

SEA has a track record of providing best of breed solutions using a wide variety of in-house technologies to ensure that the end customer receives a solution that meets or exceeds their requirements. To ensure pull-through of MoD research and provide a cost effective solution, SEA is pleased to include QinetiQ as part of the team.

SEA's Marine Systems Managing Director, Kieron Gubb said "We are very proud to have won this particular programme, which again confirms SEA's position as a leading supplier of niche technical solutions for difficult problems."
